Jeff Foley hails from Cincinnati, Ohio, graduated from West Point, and served 32 years in the United States Army earning the rank of Brigadier General. Throughout his military career he served in leadership positions around the world, in constantly changing environments, adapting to new organizations, all the time focused on the accomplishment of the mission and creating positive climates for his people to learn and grow.

Upon completion of military service, he spent 2 ½ years as an executive administrator at Augusta State University and later with Georgia Regents University (GRU). He was a strategic planner for Augusta State and while at GRU led efforts to connect the enterprise's educational and medical resources to meet military and veterans' needs.

He is now the president of his own consulting company with the mission of helping organizations develop leaders and build high performing teams. He co-authored the book Rules and Tools for Leaders (4th Edition), a down-to-earth practical guide for leaders. In the book, he highlights much of what he learned about character, culture, adapting and leading change, inspiring and developing leaders, strategic planning, and the importance of building trusted relationships with people.

Jeff enjoys a wide range of clients including small and large businesses, manufacturing plants, health care professionals, universities, nonprofits, chambers of commerce, and the NCAA. He is a partner with the Ken Blanchard Companies, certified to teach Situational Leadership II, the most taught leadership development model in the world.

He is an Eagle Scout, a Distinguished Alum from his high school, and remains passionate about supporting our military and veterans. For decades he has been a member of a host of professional associations and currently serves on four local and national nonprofit boards.
