Dr. Jill McCrory, Ringleader, Leadership Outfitters, has been actively involved in non-profit management for nearly 33 years, serving in a variety of capacities. Jill was Senior Director of Training for nearly 15 years at the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) working with volunteer leaders of an organization that had over 800 chapters/affiliates and a 2,000-member board of directors. As a co-founder of Leadership Outfitters, Jill has actively guided the leadership training and development programs for more than 1,000 organizations. She has also served on a wide variety of nonprofit boards, including serving as the chair of a national advocacy organization and as a leader in a state organization. She was a member of numerous volunteer committees and advisory groups for both the former Greater Washington Society of Association Executives (GWSAE) and the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE). She has served as faculty for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Institute of Management for many years. In October of 2017 she founded and launched a non-profit advocacy organization in Montgomery County, MD and linked this critical research with her Doctor of Ministry degree from Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, DC.
